Outline of Research	The current project aims to report parents\' experiences of fatigue while raising a child with a disability or illness. We are interested in parents\' need for information and support to manage fatigue. The project will help us to identify how we can best support parents of children with disability or chronic illness. You are invited to complete a 20 minute survey about your experiences of fatigue and wellbeing as a parent of a child with disability or illness. Your involvement is voluntary and anonymous and therefore it will not be possible to identify you in the project. If you have a child who has either a disability or chronic illness you can become involved in this project by either following the link below to access the survey online or alternatively contact Brooke Slater: email: bcslater@students.ballarat.edu.au.
